

Atiyah ARFAN is an Iraqi electrical engineer who graduated from the Technology University in Baghdad. He has worked in Iraq for various national and international companies involved, as a project Manager, in power systems installations including power plants powered by heavy fuel engines.